

The boys at no cost them. These neckerchiefs were to be returned when the boy left scouting so others could use them. This didn't happen so I'd finally quit making them.

The Orange Cap was designed and produced by Tex Putman and Ned Mickelson even before we became the Virgin River Valley District in an attempt to hasten the process of becoming a district of our own. The old Boulder Dam Area shoulder patch was given to me by my son-in-law, Michael Bennett. I in turn donated them to the Museum.

The remainder of the patches and other uniform accessories were some I rounded up to make the uniform as authentic as I could.
