OUT OF THE WILDERNESS.—When Colonel Burris returned to his Kansas quarters, from the Camden Point skirmish, he had a crowd of contrabands following his army. The Conservative says: "A large number of recruits for the black legion were brought over, or rather followed the command of Colonel Burris, as it returned to quarters. A portion of them, looking as though each had just been presented with a new watch, were enrolled and sent to camp below the city. Real plantation hands they were, and "mighty glad to get out o' de wilderness,"
