Still Moving.

Some people from Beverly or elsewhere heard there was a trifling white man living in "Happy Hollow," Platte City, with a negro woman. Last Friday night a lot of these people came to town and visited the said white man and his black companion. They called the white man out doors, hit him twenty five lashes, well laid on, and gave him fifteen minutes to get up and git. He got. The next morning he passed by a farm house about six miles south of town, told the farmer of his midnight adventure, and continued on his way. He said there was a mob of five hundred men all armed with Winchesters, ropes and pitchforks and he was glad to escape with his life. He is still going.
