Another Fugitive Slave Case.

On Saturday afternoon last, a warrant was placed in the hands of Deputy U. S. Marshal Hook, for the arrest of five fugitives—four claimed us belonging to Dr. Samuel Rixley, of Platte county, and one the property of Dr. Walker. In the evening, Marshals Hook and Medill, in company with Judge Gambell, Judge Pendery and Commissioner Callahan, and Dr. Rixley, started for Delaware—the Dr. stating that one of the men was near Delaware. The arrest was made at "Uncle Adam's," three miles below Delaware, and George was brought back to Delaware for trial, at the elose of which, Commissioner Callahan remanded the fugitive back to Rixley, as the agent for the owner, Dr. Walker, and ordered the Deputy Marshals to deliver the property over, which they did. This is the first instance that a fugitive has ever been returned to Missouri, according to law, but the sequel will show that this one did not stick. George was delivered to Dr. Rixley on the other side of the river, and just as Rixley and George went up the bank, some one in the brush shouted—"shoot the G—d d—n Jayhawkers," and immediately volley after volloy was poured into the supposed Jayhawkers. Rizley was shot in the cheek and neck, and some ten balls passed through his coat. George escaped into the brush, and the Deputies reached their boat in safety, but were only saved by the Missourians' horses miring in the quick sand, on the beach, in trying to get possession of their boat. Rixley reached the boat just in time to be pulled in by the boatmen.

George escaped down the river, crossed on a log, and is again somewhere in Kansas. "Bully for George."—Leavenworth Times, 12th.
