We learn that Jennison made a little excursion into the rebel country, from Kansas City, on Thursday, and burned Hickman's Mills, together with three or four houses of notorious rebels in Independence, and brought back to camp with him about seventy-five contrabands, and any number of horses and carriages, and quantities of such other moveable property of rebels as he could conveniently lay hands upon It won't take Jennison for-ever to bring the rebels of Jackson county to terms. Wyandott Gazette.

A Big Thing,---A gentlemen residing in this city went down to Kansas City with Col, Jeninson's regiment. He returned yesterday with a couple of hacks, several horses and mules, and eight or ten of the colored population--all contraband. The whole will undoubtedly be turned over to the Government.—Leav Times.
