THE death of Gen. George P. Dorris is announced from St. Louis. Gen. Dorris was well known throughout the state. He formerly lived in Platte county, where he was a large slave owner and negro trader. About the time the rebellion broke out he went to Montana, where he added largely to his wealth. Returning he settled in St. Louis, where he erected a stately mansion. It will be remembered that his wife was murdered less than a year ago by her grandson.
