Entertained His Former Slave.

M. L. Dix, mayor of DeKalb, recently discovered that Theodore Irving, an Atchison (Kan.) aged colored man, had been his slave before the war, and sent for Irving to visit him at DeKalb. Mr. Dix gave a dinner for his old slave and a present from the plantation where he had worked in slavery. Dix had not heard from his old slave for over 20 years, although they had lived but 15 miles apart during that time.
