—The editors family dined Thanksgiving on a splendid turkey furnished by that faithful old colored woman, "Aunt Sarah" Williams. For twelve years "Aunt Sarah" has furnished the writer two turkeys a year, one for Thankgiving and one for Christmas, and they have always been the best of her flock. She has proven herself so thoroughly reliable that we never have any concern upon the turkey question, for we well know that "Aunt Sarah" will be on time and that the bird will be in prime condition. If there were more "Aunt Sarahs" in the world, it would be better off, and her example of faithfulness and reliability might well be followed by many white people we could mention.
