EX-SLAVE WHO KNEW GEN. ANDREW JACKSON IS DEAD.

Alfred Toliver, an ex-slave, died at his home west of Tonganoxie last Thursday of senility at the age of 115 years. He was born in Kentucky and was held a slave in Daviess and Platte Counties, Mo. Toliver claimed that he worked in the harvest fields during the War of 1812 and remembered General Andrew Jackson well.

Alex Toliver, a son of Alfred Toliver by his third wife says that his father was married five times and there were born to them to his knowledge, twenty-six children at least.

In the last years of his life the old man was blind and unable to work. He was buried last Saturday in Summit Cemetery.
