Old Ex-Slave Reviews His Life

Lewis Johnson, is a well known old negro of McKinney. He owns his home in Lewisville. He is one of the few who has seen McKinney and Collin develop from a mere village and semi-wilderness into one of the most beautiful cities and prosperous counties in the United States. He is 75 years old, and was once a slave—belonging to Dr. Tony Hunn of Platt county, Missouri, father of "Uncle Frank" Hunn, who now lives with his son at Celina. Dr. Hunn died in Missouri. His widow brought Johnson and his sister to McKinney during the war. He was freed at the Hunn home which was a few miles north of McKinney. After he had been made free he remained with the family and farmed for three years. He said he was always well treated by his masters, and was never sold. He has been helping save the big grain crop in Collin county. As soon as the binders started up he went to the harvest fields and shocked wheat until harvest was over. Then he enlisted with a thrashing outfit and has been busy at this work since. He is living with his second wife and has three children.

VALUABLE SAN SABA OIL LEASES

MARVELOUS OIL DEVELOPMENTS ARE BEING MADE IN LAMPASAS AND SAN SABA COUNTIES.

I have just returned from Lampasas and San Saba counties and drilling is being resumed with renewed activities. Several wells showing very favorably for production and just one good well will shoot leases skyward. I have the following propositions for immediate acceptance subject to previous sale. The best buy in Texas.

10,000 acres solid body deep
