FORMER SLAVE DIES HERE.

Riley Summers, an ex-slave, who had been a famiiiar figure on Minnesota avenue for about forty years, died Monday. He had made his home with friends at 931 Walker avenue. Summers had worked as a janitor for Blomquist and Son, tailors, for the last twenty-five years. In very early days he was employed by pioneer families and the old inhabitants all knew him. He was born in Platte county, Missouri; and was freed in 1864, coming to Wyandotte county with his mother soon after. Summers' exact age was not known, but he was believed to be well over 75 years.
