It appears, from returns published by the Statistical Society of Paris, that there are at present 3,815,847 soldiers under arms in the eighteen European States, containing a population of 289,495,195 souls. These standing armies cost annually 2,321,400,545 france, or about 844 france per man. It appears fur-ther, that for every 76 inhabitants one is taken for the military service, and that the armies cost 32 per cent of the total expenditure of the various countries by which they are maintained. Should the Powers interested in reducing this enermous expenditure come to an understanding grant. 1,907,924, or half the men under arms, being from 20 to 35 years of age, might be immediately restored to peacesol occupations. The expense so saved would amount to 1,600,000,000.—a sum sufficient to add 6,000 miles of rallway annually to those already existing in Europe. This great improvement once realized, the European Powers might direct their attention to the reduction of their debt. The annual interest of their debt is cetimated at 2,300,000,000f., representing a capital of 57,500,000,000f., which might be paid off in 36 years, or the saving might be applied to the reduction of the Saxes which press most heavily on the population. The fact of restoring 1,907,924 men in the prime of life to a peaceful occupation, would be one of the most efficacious means of adding to the prosperity of Europe. Calculating the wages of these men at only 2f. a day.

and supposing that their pay represents the fifth of the value produced by their labor, this pacific army would ereste daily produce of the value of 20,000,000f. A great portion of the capital, moreover, now employed in the manufacture of articles required for the clothing and arming of these 1,907,924 men would become dispos-shie, and might be applied to other branches, incom-parably more useful, of national industry. Finally, the effect of keeping so many young men at home would be, at least temporarily, to reduce the price of labor, and thus to increase production.

THE SCHLESWIG-HOLSTEIN QUESTION. On Sunday, Dec. 6, there were stormy scenes some of the charebes of Holstein. A great number of the pestors limited themselves to offering up the pre-peribed prayer for "the legitimate Sovereign," and so kept open a line of retreat to either camp. Pastor Han-son, of Wansbeck, who knew the temper of his people, prayed simply "for the King," without adding the name of Christian IX.; but, in spite of this precention. that he be recognized by the Germanic Diet!" DEESDEN. Dec. 7. Evening.—The Dresden Journal of to-day publishes a telegram from Frankfort stating that in to-day's sitting of the Federal Diet the representa-tives of Weimar and Saxe-Meiningen introduced a proposition that neither the King of Denmark nor the Duke of Augustenburg should be recognized as the Sovereign of Lanenburg, but that the Federal Diet should rather take that Duchy under its own administration. This proposition was referred to the Committee, who will make their report and proposal thereon.

COPENHAGEN, Dec. 8.—The Dagblada of to-day says:

"The nobility and peasantry, and the Legislative Assembly of the Duchy of Lauenberg, held a meeting on Friday last, and passed a resolution declaring their intention to remain faithful to Denmark, and to recogmize King Christian." A deputation from the Municipal Council of Vienna presented a petition to the Emperor yesterday relative to the Duchies of Schleawig and Holstein. The Emperor, in reply, said he did not deem it neces-ary to assure them that in this question he should fulan his duties as a Prince of the German Confederation. and strive with all his power for the preservation of the constitutional rights of the Duchies. COPENHAGEN, Doc. 10.—Sweden has withdrawn from the alliance with Denmark. The reason put forward, according to The Dagblad, is, that as the quarrel now pending between Denmark and Germany concerns the ondon treaty of 1852, Sweden cannot separate herself from the other Powers who signed the treaty.
