Tried to answer your questionnaire. Personally I think you should not write a book about him. Can't understand why Bert had this in his will, why in his past did he not answer letters of relatives, including his mother he claimed he loved very much. He did not want me to tell anybody about my visit in Oceano. I kept that promise till we received a letter from his lawyer telling me about his death.

This past month I visited Bert's brother Henk in Oshawa and we both feel and can't understand why you want to write a book about him.

In his life he wanted to be left alone, why not leave him alone now and let Bert Rest In Peace
