

LONDON D

ANY publishers who happened to be at the British Museum yesterday when its Director and Principal Librarian, Sir Frank Francis, formally introduced its new catalogue, must have been pretty green with envy.

This work of 4 million entries and 263 volumes is the world's largest single publication. By the use of special cameras the original price of £8 a volume has been reduced to £6 10s, and the whole print of 750 sets has been sold all over the world—at a profit.

The United States is the largest buyer—242—and Britain is taking 146. The work has been completed within seven years, whereas the catalogue of the Bibliothèque Nationale in Paris, begun in 1897, is still unfinished.

Sir Frank said the British Museum's might be the nearest we should ever get to a universal bibliography and the last in its present form. In future computers will take over.

Stellen dear,

Perhaps Owen's suggestions may work. Some one else suggests painter thinner rather than persons.

Thank for the Book Collector - Good reading.
