A million school book covers are being printed to carry a message on the prevention of forest fires and on the need for timber growing in Louisiana.

No doubt you have one of my previous letters in your file. I need only say, therefore, that this message will reach practically every school child and nearly every home in the State. It should accomplish much for the land owners of Louisiana. Indeed, it will be hard to reckon the far-reaching benefits of this broadcast appeal to Louisiana's younger generation.

The work is being accomplished entirely through contributions in the form of cash, paper and labor. A statement is given below to show the status of the project to date:
