

your note last, I am going to write to Margaret Hamilton by this mail or the next. I wrote two letters to her since poor Betty died but I have not received any answer. I heard from Matilda that she had another child and that Abbey was married, we like your likeness very much you have grown up a very fine looking girl, you look more like your father than your mother, how is Harriet and little Alice, the little toddler how she used to try to put my boy - eyes out enclosed I send his likeness tell Alice he will do for a husband for her, he writes very good and tell her he will write her a letter some day soon. Dear Lizzy write soon and tell me all about your Uncle Robert's children and how your Father and Mother are and your Grandmother & all your aunts, and give my love to all enquiring friends my husband is well or at least I hope so he started for France yesterday on business but he will
