CHARLES FEELEY

PRO-OWNER

Clearbrook Country Club

Long associated with the game of golf is the host-professional and Clearbrook country club owner Charles Feeley. Like many other professionals, he began as a caddy at Knickerbocker Country Club in Tenafly, New Jersey.

Following four years service in the Air Force he began his PGA assistantship at Gull Lake country club in Kalamazoo.

With a four year break to attend and graduate at Michigan State University, Feeley resumed golf proing at this same club, then Hamilton Lake Golf and Country Club.

Twin Orchard Country Club in Lake Zurich, Illinois was his next move, then on as Resident and teaching pro at Canyon Country Club in Palm Springs, California. It was during his five years at Canyon that he became well known as the youngest teaching professional with a national following.

With Palm Springs' reputation as the famous "golf capitol of the world" his pupils have included many greats from the worlds of stage and screen, politics and professional sports. The long list would include Gene Barry, Frank Sinatra, William Demarest, David Janssen, Jack and Mary Benny, Don Adams, Chuck Connors, Kamela Connors, Keeley Smith, Jackie Cooper,

Robert Stack, Hugh O'Brien and Glen Campbell. Others are Pierre Salinger, Dean Rusk, Hank Aguirre, Peanuts Lowry, Billy Gambrell, Jack Sanford, Ron Perronoski, Don Drysdale, Sandy Koufax, Roman Gabriel, George Low, former CIA head Admiral Rayburn and former Los Angeles Police chief Tom Reddin.

Sensing that the Saugatuck area with its setting of natural beauty was an outstanding location for golf course activity, he purchased the course and club house in August 1967 and began immediately the expansion program of the course with a new patio, practice range, front nine modifications and improvements, enlarged pro shop and new snack bar.

Charlie and his wife Laurie Ann and their children Timothy and Jennifer cordially welcome you and their friends, old and new, to Clearbrook on the occasion of this tournament.
