Bankers Support Growers

50 PER CENT DROP—John Olds of the Van Horn State Bank in Hartford, Conn., has announced the 50 per cent drop in the value of the bank's assets, which he said is the "worst worst of the worst."

Olds said that the bank's assets are now valued at $100,000, down from $200,000. He said that the bank's liabilities are now $200,000, up from $100,000.

Other bank representatives attending were: Mr. Elmer Knuth, president of the Van Horn State Bank; Mr. Elmer Knuth, president of the Van Horn State Bank; Mr. Elmer Knuth, president of the Van Horn State Bank.

The two co-chairmen of the growers committee, R. A. Olds and John C. Woodard, said that the bankers had "unintentionally" taken away from the growers the right to farm.
