His illness was of long duration, yet he bore his suffering patiently. Memorial services were conducted January 17 by the Rev. J. M. Mealy, after which he was laid to rest in Oakmont cemetery.

He has walked through the valley of the shadow of death,
And crossed to that beautiful shore,
There with the angels watching,
He will live forevermore.

In that land so grand and glorious,
Where the night is turned to day,
In the spirit land of glory,
Forever and for aye.

Dear ones he is only sleeping,
His spirit's gone before,
Across death's dark river;
He is standing on the shore.
He has joined the heavenly host,
Has joined the angel band;
He is walking with the Savior,
Along the golden strand.

So do not weep for his departure,
He is happy and is blessed,
Waiting, watching for his loved ones
When they called to their last rest.
What a glorious grand reunion,
When he meet him on that shore,
There to always be with Jesus,
Happy, happy! evermore.

Do not grieve for him, but wait contented,
Until the race of life is run,
Then go forth prepared to meet him,
And say, Lord, thy will be done.
Thy will always and forever,
Crown us holy one by one,
To live always there with Jesus,
God the Father, God the Son and Holy Ghost,
A SISTER.

Dark is the room
Empty the chair,
Home is not home,
For Bert is not there.

A precious one from us has gone,
A voice we loved is stilled;
A place is vacant in our home
Which never can be filled.

Heaven retaineth now our treasure,
Earth the lonely casket keeps,
And the sunbeams love to linger
Where our darling Bert sleeps.

He shall sleep but not forever,
In that lonely, lonely grave,
Blessed be the Lord that taketh,
Blessed be the Lord that gave.

The golden gate is opened wide,
A gentle voice said come;
Angels on the other side
Welcomed our loved one home.

Father, mother, sisters and brothers,
On weep for him no more;
Let us prepare to meet him,
Yes, meet him on that golden shore.

Yes, he has gone to heaven before us,
But he turns and waves his hand,
Now he is singing with the angels,
In that bright and happy land.

AUNT JANE.

KEYS.

In loving remembrance of Lucy Keys, who fell asleep in Jesus, March 1, 1893, at her home near Graysville, Pa., of a complication of diseases. She was ill only a few weeks, but from the first it was evident that she must die, yet she bore it all with christian meekness and cheerful resignation and at last came the voice of her Master, whispering, "Come unto me and I will give you rest." She has been a member of the Methodist church at Fairview for several years. Young, with life full of pleasing anticipations, she calmly and triumphantly awaited the last moments, with trust unshaken and fearless heart. By her loving manners she had gained a host of friends, as was clearly shown by the many who came to see her beautiful form taken away, and with tearful eyes and sinking hearts bade her a last adieu. How much she will be missed by the church, by her brothers and sisters and friends!

"With us her name shall live
Through long succeeding years;
Embalmed by all our hearts can give
Our praises and our tears."

Her remains were interred at the Fairview cemetery, March 2, 1893. The pallbearers were four young men: Messrs. Gribben, Smalley, Leslie and Younken.

Sweet be thy rest, dear Lucy, and may thy death be a blessing to all thy friends and lead us all to be ready for that brighter world, and when the Saviour comes to make up his jewels, may we all meet to part no more. He that remains faithful to the end will receive a crown of everlasting life.

A darling sister's called away,
While we a little longer stay
To tread alone life's weary road,
Awaiting the summons from our God.

Death found her, yet in early life,
And called her hence from worldly strife
Her happy spirit, angels bore
On joyful wings to Canaan's shore.

Oh, would we call her back again
To this dark world of sin and pain?
Oh, no! such thoughts we would not dare,
We only long her joy to share.

Farewell, dear Lucy, till we meet
In transports at the Saviour's feet,
And there unite in blissful lays,
To sing his everlasting praise.

One of Lucy's loving friends,
M. FLORENCE LESLIE.

BOYD.

Died at the home of her father in Franklin township, Florence youngest daughter of James and Mary Boyd. The little girl contracted the diphtheria about the 16th and was thought to be better but on the 18th she almost without any previous struggle expired. She was aged one month and twenty-six days. The body was interred in the Sycamore burying ground. The bereaved parents have the sympathy of the entire community.

Gone, she is gone, my baby!
Deep in the cold damp clay,
With her wee hands pressed
Across her breast,
They have put my darling away.

Yes, she will sleep, my loved one,
Sleep through the mist and rain;
Nor the sunbeam's wile
Can coax her smile,
Nor the shadow give her pain.

Florence, oh Florence, my daughter!
What would I give to-night,
Could I but press
You again to my heart,
In your little gown of white,

Father, oh Father, of heaven!
Couldst thou not pass her by?
Each night I prayed
For my darling babe,
And you loved her no more than I.

Yet I will pray for my baby
Over death's crystal sea,
With faith unshaken,
For he who has taken
My darling, will come for me.

In Memoriam.

The following lines are inscribed to the memory of Florence, youngest daughter of James and Elizabeth Boyd, of Franklin township, who died of diphtheria January 18, aged one month and twenty six days.

Fresh from the garden of angels,
A sweet little cherubim flew
Down to the dewdrops and daisies,
Down where the violets grew.

Down from the bowers of Eden,
A radiant, heavenly gem,
The fairest child of the angels
Come to the children of men.

Fair as the blush of morning,
Sweet as the wild flowers' bloom,—
Florence we called our baby,—
Florence they've writ on her tomb.

For back to the gardens of Heaven,
Back to the star-crowned home,
Has fled the child of the Angels,
The baby we called our own.

But oft in the dewy eve,
As fair as she used to smile,
My darling comes back from the cloudlands
To side with her mamma awhile.

And I am afraid no longer
To cross Death's crystal sea,
For I know on the flower-tipped border
My baby is waiting for me.

MOTHER.

OBITUARY.

BOYD.

Died at the home of her parents in North Franklin township, Mattie second daughter of James and Mary Boyd.

The little girl had been ill of diphtheria and was thought to be recovering, but on Friday Jan. 27, was taken worse and died the following evening. Mattie was a bright little maiden of seven years, 1 month and 2 days, and was beloved by all that knew her. She was attending school at Hills when taken sick and many of the parents of that district are fearful of the contagious spreading among the remaining pupils. The remains were interred in the Sycamore burying ground Sunday, January 29.

Daughter of earth, thy years were few and fleeting,
An early victim found death's cycle, thro',
No prayer nor tear could save thee; thou art sleeping,
Shall sleep till time becomes eternity

And we must leave thee to th' infinite power,
When thou alone shalt stand with him that made thee,
Where love weeps idly in death's dark hour,
Than Christ the crucified alone can aid thee,

Far from the sphere to mortal action given,
From worldly passion ere its flame were thine,
From dying earth to the undying Heaven
Thou hast been born to grace the Father's shrine

No more thy childish face our hearts shall gladden,
No more thy prattling footsteps wake the ear
But every memory that the heart can sadden,
Lies clustered round thy melancholy bier

No more thy smile shall warm a mother's heart,
No more from childish lips the blessing prayer
To Heaven shall rise, for thither gone thou art
To read the answer God has w. litten there.

Couldst thy cold tomb its heart of marble open
What tales of glory would its pale lips bear;
But closed the real—till by redemption broken
Thy heart and thee must sleep together there.

O, fare-thee-well, thou little angel maiden,
Offspring of the evangel, thou hast flown
O'er Siola's water to that star-crowned Eden,
Kissed by the sunlight of Immanuel's throne.

There thou shalt roam in fairer fields elysian,
Thy young heart free from pain and mortal care,
Till when our spirits rise from Death's transition,
To Heaven's kingdoms, we rejoice thee there.

ONE WHO KNEW AND LOVED HER.

Little Mattie Boyd, a seven year old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James Boyd, of Franklin township, died on Saturday evening last of diphtheria croup, and was buried on the following day at the Sycamore burying ground. Some days previous the parents laid an infant to rest which had died from the same cause.
