

being made.

We can emulate each other in exhibiting the best we have, and we shall constantly see abundant incentives as well as opportunities, for doing better and better, hereafter; and when the resources, and energy of Elkhart County are, from these small beginnings, more fully brought out and developed, we have no reason to fear that we shall occupy a position second to any county in the State.

I regret that I have not had more time to devote to this subject since I had conferred on me the honor of being elected President of the Society.— But my duties upon the Circuit, which have been even more arduous than usual, have since that period necessarily occupied every moment of my time.

E. M. CHAMBERLAIN.
