

By Teddy Fenton

Dick and Sammy Webb arrived at the "damsite" city of Boulder City in 1938. They had lived in Peru for seven years. It was there that their only child, Robert was born.

By 1938 Hoover Dam was finished. Men and women had moved to other projects, many of the working stiffs followed Frank Crowe, the supt. of construction on Hoover Dam. Many predicted that Boulder City would become a ghost town! Here then is what happened.

In our town was a lumber yard named the Boulder City Builders Supply. It was there all of us bought the materials that was to build Boulder City Homes.