

Boulder City Likes Uncle Sam

The citizens of Boulder City have spoken. At least the City Advisory Council has voted 5 to 2 to approve a motion to inform the Secretary of the Interior that the people of the community do not want separation or incorporation at this time and that such enabling legislation should be held in abeyance as long as this condition prevails.

The council chambers, our correspondent Laura Bell informs us, was packed with citizens who spoke up for the "status quo" and expressed resentment that "only one side of the picture, that of the Chamber of Commerce and real estate interests, is ever presented in the newspapers."
