

30 Liaison Pilot Students Coming Tomorrow to Enter Course at Boulder

Nineteen Who Just Finished
First Phase Will Complete Next
Phase January 20 at Academy

Thirty liaison pilots are expected to arrive in Boulder City tomorrow for instruction at the United Nations Military Flight academy, according to Bill Pike, commander.

The men will come from various points, and will take a ten weeks course.

They will be housed in Dormitory 1, which formerly was used by the C.C.C. and which now houses students and classroom activities for the academy.

The 19 pilot students who recently completed the first phase of their instruction are now in the middle of the second phase and will complete this January 20.
