

One dam plioneer, informed of his death, paid him this simple tribute—"There wasn't an old time family in this town for whom Elie hadn't done some little favor without the slightest thought of being repaid. His going leaves a blank in our community life which can't be re-filled."