

Guy Ligon Purchases Boulder City Drive-In

Guy Ligon, formerly operator of "The world's largest and most elaborate dining car," at Wingdale, N. Y., has purchased the Boulder City Drive-In from M. F. Weaver, of Shelby, Va., and has assumed its operation.

Born and reared in Abilene, Tex., Ligon served in the navy during World War I and then went to New York, living at Pawling while operating his "dining car" for the past twelve years.

He has two sons, Fred, a student at Manlius Military academy, at Manlius, N. Y., and Guy Junior, who was graduated from Manlius in June and will enter Rensselaer Polytechnical Institute at Troy, N. Y., in the fall.
