

Hoover Dam

The story of hard times,
tough people
and the taming of a wild river

5

Elizabeth Mann

Dedicated to librarians everywhere who make the writing of nonfiction not only possible, but a pleasure, and in particular to The Writers Room Librarian Alfred Lane.

Special thanks are due to Dennis McBride, Boulder City/Hoover Dam Museum Curator, researcher, oral historian extraordinaire, for his extensive contributions to the creation of this book. The "Voices" of Hoover Dam and "Those Who Died" are taken from his book (with Andrew Dunar), Building Hoover Dam: An Oral History of the Great Depression.

Thanks also to Kelly Conner of the Bureau of Reclamation in Boulder City for her invaluable assistance with photo research;
to Maureen Sullivan of the Boulder City/Hoover Dam Museum; to Joan Elizabeth Goodman; to University of Nevada Las Vegas Librarians Peter Michel and Kathy War for help far beyond the call of good librarianship; to New York City Lab School 6th grade editors Cindy Cheng, Magda Kelleher, Alanna Kowalski, Anny Oberlink and Catherine Rice for their insights and suggestions.

And thanks, as always, to The Writers Room in New York City for providing a quiet desk and a safe haven.

Other Books by Elizabeth Mann

The Brooklyn Bridge
The Great Pyramid
The Great Wall
The Roman Colosseum
The Panama Canal
