Ruth had the following to say about the experience: "Fortunately, we were evacuated to Panama after five days of confusion and bloodshed. We were lucky to be in our hotel when the revolution started. We did not leave once during the five days of horror. The electricity and phone service were off most of the time. The bleak days were brightened by the cheerful attitude of the hotel guests. The food situation was bad. We had to be rationed, of course.

"It is hard to believe such a beautiful, large city could be destroyed in so little time. Of course, most of the residential section is intact but the rest of the city looks like a ghost town. I've never seen anything so depressing. . . .

"Well, after we were finally evacuated on a U. S. Army troop ship to Panama, we were housed in the Ft. Clayton General Hospital. We rested there a few days and then proceeded to Guatemala. After several days there, we flew to Mexico, stayed two days, and then home."

Ruth lives at 933 East Moses, Cushing, Oklahoma, where she is teaching.
