Young Confined To Hospital

Tom Young, head coach of the varsity basketball team, was hospitalized yesterday for what sources termed "nervous exhaustion." The action was taken following reports in recent weeks of erratic behavior by Young.

Officials at Parkview Hospital's Parthenon Pavilion described Young's condition as "serious but stable." No other details of the coach's illness or treatment were given.

The hard-driving Young recently finished his first year as coach of the Honeybears. Despite a school record of 18 wins, the season was not without turmoil. Young reportedly had several run-ins with his temperamental superstar, Gayle Smith.

Smith, the team's leading scorer, is known on campus and throughout the Nashville Interscholastic League as a prima donna. During the season, she frequently criticized Young's handling of the team and complained that she wasn't getting the ball enough.

Upon hearing that Young had been hospitalized, Smith suggested last night that the coach receive electroshock therapy. "I'd be glad to give him the juice myself," she said, "About five hundred volts ought to do it."

Senior co-captain A.R. Caldwell, when reached for comment, said, "I knew something like this would happen. The guy's had brain bubbles since the Brentwood game."

The first signs of Young's deterioration were noticed by his wife, Kathy. "Tommy would become despondent for several days at a time," she said. "He would just stare into space and say nothing, except every few hours he would start to babble incoherently."

On one occasion, Mrs. Young returned home to find her husband putting their infant son, Timothy, through a series of grueling basketball drills. When the child failed to respond, Young allegedly called the 6-month-old lad a "wimp" and a "crybaby."

Public speculation about Young's mental stability surfaced in February when Young, attending the Vanderbilt-Tennessee basketball game, wandered onto the court while the contest was in progress. Play was halted briefly as Young berated several of the Vanderbilt players and exhorted the game officials to "call a dadgum foul."

Although no word was available as to how long Young's confinement would last, all indications are that it will be lengthy. Grover Pugh, the paramedic who treated Young en route to the hospital, said the patient was "in a transom" and was "a basket case, the likes of which I have never seen before."

Two days before he entered the hospital, Logos II photographers found Mr. Tom Young playing with paper dolls. These actions are symptoms of the third or fourth stages of Mr. Young's "nervous exhaustion."

Dr. Gower Founds New School

by Leah Thackston

"Dreams really do come true," Dr. Gower exclaims triumphantly. Dr. Dona Gower founded a new college preparatory school here in Nashville. Besides wanting to become a Broadway actress, opening a school for gifted students has always been one of her goals in life.

The new school, called the Gower Preparatory School, is located in the basement of the downtown Kiwanis Club building. It is an extremely advanced co-educational institution for highly motivated students. Dr. Gower describes the foundations of the Gower Prep School. She says that the new school is for students who are truly dedicated to their studies. The course of academics includes four years of very intense study. According to Dr. Gower, there is no need for grade division (i.e. freshman - Senior) because of the advanced nature of each student. Also, tuition is nonexistent because all the students receive federal scholarships. Dr. Gower adds, "The entrance exam, though, is one that even God would find difficult."

Dr. Gower goes on to list the required courses of study, two of which are an "Introduction to Truth and Beauty" and an "In Depth Study of Beauty and Truth." Currently she is trying to persuade the Board of Trustees to accept a course called "English: Empress of the Disciplines."

Although Dr. Gower is planning to remain at Harpeth Hall, she is a lifetime member of the Board of Trustees at the Gower Preparatory School. "I would like to teach there someday," decides Dr. Gower, "maybe after my retirement here." She laughs and adds, "Dreams do come true. Broadway, here I come!"

Dr. Marney Becomes Computer Scientist

by Jessica Ward

Have you ever driven by Harpeth Hall at night and seen a blue BMW parked behind the Study Hall? That car belongs to Betty Marney whom Logos II reporters found secretly working on the computer. Studying for her computer science degree at Vanderbilt Engineering School, Dr. Marney plans to leave her position as Head of the English Department to enter the field of computer science.

Dr. Betty Marney throws her red shoe at the computer when she cannot find the solution to the only problem she missed on her computer science exam.

"I find computers so useful," she says. "At first I programmed my students' term papers into my home computer so I could get a good laugh every now and then. Later, I became more interested in the computer and took several classes at Vanderbilt. I finally decided computer science is the place for me."

IBM has already hired Dr. Marney and she will begin work June 1. For this job, IBM considered over 200 applicants from such outstanding schools as Massachusetts Institute of Technology, Stanford University, and Rice University.

"I got bored with Thoreau, Eliot, Henry James, Thomas A. Becket, and, especially, Hawthorne," she claims. "I decided to 'go with the flow.' I figure the saying 'if you can't beat 'em, join 'em' applies to me. Ol' Herman Melville just couldn't cut it!"

Raise The Drinking Age?

by Jessica Ward

Should the state government raise the drinking age from nineteen to twenty-one? Faced with the rising number of alcohol-related accidents, the state feels that increasing the drinking age would result in fewer deaths than previously. But is that proposal the best answer?

In Europe, there is no drinking age, yet the Europeans have no problems with drunk drivers. However, the driving age there is eighteen, while in Tennessee the driving age is sixteen. Ever since the mid-eighteenth century, citizens of the United States have fought for temperance laws, but in Europe, there is no move for alcohol regulations. If Europe can succeed without a drinking age, surely the United States can succeed with the drinking age at eighteen or nineteen. The slogan, "Old enough to fight, old enough to drink," used during the Vietnam War, still applies in the '80's. If one has to register for the draft and fight in a war, he should also be able to drink.

There is a solution to the drunk driving problem: raise the driving age and issue a stricter driving test.

People under eighteen could drive mopeds or use public transportation to get around town. Since it takes more skill to drive a car than it does to drink a six pack of Busweiser, raising the driving age, not the drinking age, is the answer.

Letter To The Editor Policy

Logos II solicits well-written letters to the editor from the student body or faculty. These letters can either praise or criticize an aspect of Harpeth Hall. The writer whould give support for her opinion and try to offer a solution to any problem that she points out. Unsigned letters will not be used, and the authorship of each letter will be checked before it is printed. Please put your letters in the designated Logos II box in the office.

ALBUM TRACKS

by Cathy Callaway

Lawrence Welk: Greatest Hits, Volume 3

Wunnerful, wunnerful. Champagne must at its best. It's like having the man and his orchestra playing live every time you listen to the album. Waltz music will never die. This recording will live forever in history. His orchestrations of "Tea for Two" and "The Beer Barrel Polka" are definitely worth playing at your next party.

The debut album from this hot new comedy team captures all the spark and spontaneity of their live performances. There are individual selections, such as Betty's "Let Mow the Leaves of Grass" and Dona's "Walden Pond is a Drainage Dump," but the "doctors of comedy" are at their best when working together. They somehow even manage to work in a few gems of literary insight between their quips and wisecracks. This duo might do such wonders for "lit crit" as Chuck Berry did for rock-n-roll.

SOPHISTICATION: THE NEW HH LOOK

by Mary Frances Milan

the uniform committee has recently decided to change the appearance of the Harpeth Hall students. The committee feels that to be successful, one must wear career-oriented clothes; therefore, the uniform will be composed of conservative yet stylish clothes.

A straight navy blazer and skirt will be the basis of the new uniform. Variations of this outfit include a khaki blazer and skirt for fall and spring and a gray wool suit for winter. Simple oxford cloth shirts of white, blue or white and blue pinstripes must be worn with the suits. Simple ties may be worn with the oxfords to add color. Conservative navy or off-white pumps will complete the new uniform.

To insure that the new "Harpeth Hall look" is kept neat and simple, certain restrictions have been made. Shoes must have a heel of at least two inches and writing will not be allowed on them. Hose must be of neutral colors, the sheerer, the better. Skirts will be required to extend one inch below the knee. Hair must be kept pulled back in a bun to complete the sophisticated look.

The committee, composed of Mr. Young, Dr. Bouton, Mr. Goodwin, Mr. Toozoonoo will clarify any questions students have on the new uniform later in the year.

Faculty Member Elected Lieutenant Governor of the Kiwanette Chapter

by Colleen Johnson

Recently, one of our beloved teachers received the distinct honor of being elected the first woman in history to head the Kiwanette Chapter. Since establishing the Key Club Chapter at Harpeth Hall, Dr. Dona Gower has worked hard not only serving her community but also founding the "Kiwanette" chapter of the Kiwanis Club.

This new division, entirely composed of women, is dedicated to advocating the supremacy of men. In addition to secretarial duties and waiting tables at the weekly luncheons, Dr. Gower and the Kiwanettes hold regular rallies for their fellow men in order to encourage and show their support tor and subservience to the Kiwanis males.

When Dr. Gower was asked why she feels that the Kiwanette division is worthwhile, she replied, "To quote Shelley, 'Win and wear her if you can —she is the most delightful of God's creatures—heaven's best gift—man's joy and pride in prosperity, and his support and comfort in affliction.' "

Dona Gower participates in the Kiwanette's annual Fun Run to show her devotion to the Kiwanettes and their prodigy, the Harpeth Hall Key Club.

Harpeth Hall Announces Plans For Skating Rink

by Kim Oliver

Plans for converting the art gallery into a roller-skating rink are busily under way. Many of the faculty members, as well as a large portion of the student body, feel that this will be an extremely valuable addition to the campus. Mr. David Wood said, "The girls will finally get a taste of true American culture rather than wasting valuable learning time experiencing art." As much of the art will remain, skaters are requested to be careful of the sculpture display scattered throughout the rink.

Among the additions will be a complicated light system with an elaborate disco ball, purchased from the set of Saturday Night Fever. It will be delivered personally by John Travolta on opening night.

The school is branching out its skating program in many ways. The Middle School plans to cancel all art courses. Instead, Mrs. Sharon Charney, Mr. Peter Goodwin, and Miss Patricia Settle will join Mrs. Susan Russ and Mrs. Pat Moran in teaching skating education, under the new title SE.

Because the seniors will enjoy only a short period of time with the skating program, they have decided to use the college tour time to "get in a few extra laps around the rink," as one senior explained it.

Tryouts for a roller derby team will be announced at the end of April. The team will be opened to all students, faculty, and parents. The team will be divided into A, B, and C divisions, with the best participants in division A. The A-Team will travel throughout Europe, Africa, and Australia this summer as the "Roller Bears" and are expected to bring home the coveted world championship title.

The roller-skating rink opens April 1. In addition to the presentation of the disco ball by John Travolta, other opening festivities will include an exquisite skating demonstration by Miss Polly Fessey, and a clinic on how to keep your skates greased. The public is invited to attend.

VANDALS IN HARPYLAND

by A and A

'Twas the eve of St. Valentine's
And all through the Senior House,
Not a creature was stirring
Except two weasels.
The valentine's were flung in
The house with great care,
In hopes that some seniors would Soon be around.
The weasels nestled together,
Snug in their bed,
While visions of "upset Harpies"
Danced through their minds.
And Ali in her kilt and Angie
In her wrap
Had just settled their brains
To get away from this stuff.
When out on the lawn
There arose such a clatter
The weasels tried to break in
And did not succeed.
Away to their car
They flew like a flash
Because they couldn't tear open the Shutter or throw open the sash.
The weasels were skinny and puny,
Right stupid looking elves
And we laugh when we see them,
In spite of ourselves.
And all we've to say
As we finish to write
Is Happy April Fool's to the real fools
And to all a good day.

Valentine Vandal B squirts shaving cream on his face to conceal his hairless chin that darkened the doors of the Senior House on Valentine's Eve.

Valentine Vandal A attempts to disguise himself with his K-Mart Special sunglasses. To avenge his guilt, the criminal still lurks around several Harpies' houses during the night in an effort to apologize for his immature behavior.

Mr. Wood Loses Three Middle-Schoolers

by Julia Trabue and Annis Marney

Many people went on Spring Break trips, but the most unusual one was the Harpeth Hall and M.B.A. trip to Washington, D.C. and New York City. What made this so unusual was that three girls were left behind in New York and at West Point.

One young lady seemed to have wandered off in New York and ended up in Saks Fifth Avenue. However, before her absence was noticed, everyone was already on the plane. Her mother commented, "We haven't heard from her yet, but she does have our Saks Fifth Avenue credit card, and I am sure she is providing for her needs. She is a very resourceful person."

Another girl was lost during the St. Patrick's Day Parade. Her friends noticed that she disappeared "after the parade band went by with a big tuba." We hope that she will contact the school from Jersey City, New Jersey because that is where the band will perform next.

By accident, during the tour of West Point, another unfortunate girl strayed off unnoticed. It is thought she may have ended up in the kitchen. Her father stated, "I am sure she is having fun at West Point, but she is probably disappointed at not being the only girl."

Although these parents seem to be taking this casually, they are really concerned but are expecting phone calls within the next few weeks. If anyone has any information about the missing persons, please, contact the school.

Victor Brightens Campus Life

by Lynne Hampton, Tricia Ptomey

Victor, the dog that makes his way daily around the Harpeth Hall campus, recently delighted us with his comments about the school, during an informal interview. When asked about the campus, he replied, "More fire hydrants and bushes need to be added, and poodle wallpaper should be placed in every building."

Victor commented on curricular changes, including the suggestions that dogs should be allowed to learn academic skills and to take part in extracurricular activities, including ballet for grace and poise.

Sometimes, if you look out the window, you may see Victor bathing in the fountain, playing with lost tennis balls, or just sitting around getting attention from the girls. "I like to hang around Harpeth Hall because of the many nice girls, good facilities, and an occasional complete meal given to me by the smart girls," Victor said.

As his closing comment, he said, "I will always remain loyal to my green collar, as my favorite colors are green and gray, symbolic of Harpeth Hall." But, we heard him exclaim, as he ran out of sight, "Happy April Fools to you. Your hair is a fright."

Victor, the campus dog, laps up some mystery meat served in the Harpeth Hall cafeteria.

Fashion Flashback:

Go Ga-Ga Over Go Go Boots

Hey, swingers! If you really want to keep cool this spring, the word is POLYESTER! In millions of colors, double-knits are taking over the fashion scene. Bell bottom pants and hot pants in violent pinks are absolute musts. Shirts made of RAYON and ORLON come in thousands of Hawaiian prints and can be matched with any color pants imaginable.

Mini-skirts are here, also! The most popular ones are those made of white, black, and brown vinyl. Mix and match your mini-skirts with your new red and blue vinyl GO-GO BOOTS that lace up, of course.

A daytime necessity is the new sleeveless dress that zips up the front; color contrasting collars are especially hip. For evening, one must have a zip up JUMPSUIT, naturally sleeveless and bell bottomed! Green velveteen seems to be a very popular jumpsuit fabric.

The only shoes one needs, besides several pairs of GO-GO BOOTS, are some "Flip-Flops." These can be purchased with or without plastic flowers at your nearest drugstore. If one wants to "dress up" her thongs, may we suggest wearing dirty white anklets with them.

The only jewelry news is: Buy anything with a "peace-sign" or made of leather. Leather bracelets with your boyfriend's initials are Fab! Removable "peace sign" tatoos are nice in adding an elegant flair to your outfit.

The last thing of importance has to do with the PROM. Pick your outfits now with your date so you can be sure to get matching tux and dress. This year's Prom colors are PEACH and CHARTREUSE. Your date may want to have a lavender tux with a fuschia shirt to match your fuschia dress.

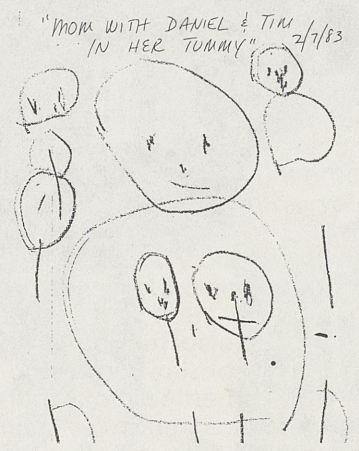
FACULTY TOT EXHIBITS CRAYOLA ART

by Dallas Hagewood & Cathy Callaway

Daniel Allen Young, son of Tom Young, English teacher at Harpeth Hall, has proven to be a very promising artist. His works are now on display in the Sheridan Art Gallery. Some of these works include "Bird Creature" and "Bug Car with Flat Tire." Each of these exemplifies his skill and creativity.

Daniel Young began drawing at age two. He considers himself to be a neo-primitivist, preferring the more simple medium of crayon.

Jessica Ward, after thoroughly studying his work, believes Daniel Young will be "the next Raphael." His proud parents exclaim, "We realize he is still a young and developing artist, and we will bring him along slowly."



Daniel drew "Mom with Daniel and Tim in her Tummy" for Dr. Dona Gower's Sex Education class. Daniel will include this work in his new artbook Pregnancy and its Consequences.

Library Announces New Rules

by Cathie Cato and Beth Blaufuss

In a recent effort to make the library more efficient and easier to use, Mrs. Mary Lee Manier has asked that all students be made aware of several new rules:

1. Books may be checked out only with an American Express credit card.
2. The library may be used only from 5:00 until 6:00 a.m., during lunch, and when Tom Selleck is on T.V.
3. Only sixth graders are allowed on the balcony.

Mrs. Manier believes that, if followed, these rules will benefit the entire student body.

An amount of concern has arisen over the absence of several valuable books. Among the missing publications are Knitting for Fun and Profit, by Madame la Farge; I Was a Grade School Dropout, by Albert Einstein; and How to Prepare for the SAT or "What, Me Worry?", by Alfred E. Newman. A reward of a Webster's Dictionary will be given to any student returning one of these books.

Mrs. Manier also wishes to thank an anonymous donor for copies of What's So Funny, Mona?", by Leonardo de Vinci; The Primer of Diplomatic Relations, by Ayatollah Khomeini; and the subscription to Speaking the King's English Clearly, published by the Association of Valley Girls. She believes all of these books will be well used.

Faculty Update

by Colleen Johnson

—Dr. Bouton can be seen daily running in the park practicing for the upcoming Boston Marathon.

—Mrs. Drews is busy preparing for the opening of the new Etruscan museum at Harpeth Hall.

—Be sure to buy the April issue of Cosmopolitan in which Mr. Young is the centerfold (Will he be the next Burt Reynolds?).

—A Freshman was seen asking Dr. Gower if she ever takes off her brown hat.

—Last month Mrs. Andrews won the Pac-Man championship in California. As her prize, she received an Atari home game program to plug into her computer.

—Mrs. Moran will be playing in an exhibition match against Jimmy Connors this month. Good luck and may the best woman win!

—Mrs. Berry has been chosen to play the lead of the opera, Madame Butterfly.

—Mrs. Evans has undergone a metamorphosis; she has left Tennessee and gone to California to live in a commune.

—Mr. Mike Goodwin is planning to buy a Rolls Royce this spring with the money he made from his articles on prostitution.

—Mrs. Mullins revealed her secret passion for Mikhail Baryshinikov.

—Mrs. Norris plans a new "specialty" catering service to Harpeth Hall students: fried octupus, chicken brains, pig hearts, and her own rabbit stew.

—Look out for Mr. Tuzeneu on "Wide World of Sports" this month! He's challenged ole Evil Kneival to a jump of the Grand Canyon.

—Mrs. Oxley recently announced plans to go on tour with "The Jackson Five."

—Dr. Marney was caught calling the Silhouette toll-free number to join the Silhouette Desire Book of the Month Club. Dr. Gower, on the other end of the line, replied, "Oh, Betty! Do you do this, too?"

—On a recent visit to the U.S., Queen Elizabeth made a special stop to see her old chum, Sarah Stamps, who claimed they had a "delightful chat."

—Mrs. Justus has lately been potty-training her dog and teaching him how to be a member of the moral community.

—During Spring Break, Mrs. Dennis flew to L.A. to film a special edition of "The Richard Simmon's Show."

—Mrs. Warterfield recently left school to set sail on the high seas in search of Asa Buchanan.

—Attention: It has just been discovered that Mrs. Martin's long lost twin sister is the one and only Jackie Onassis!

—Recently, Mrs. Rutter received a detention for failing to sign-in with Mr. Wood at 8:05 a.m. She then received a second detention for wearing her new spring denim mini-skirt to school. Watch out, Mrs. Rutter, or you'll be memorizing more than a sonnet!

Dr. Marney Runs After Beauty And Truth

by Jessica Ward

What do the English teachers do in their spare time— watch dirty movies? Listen to rock-n-roll music? Shop for the latest fashions?

After teaching "Prufrock," Walden, and Billy Budd, Dr. Elizabeth B. Marney runs thirty or forty miles in beautiful Percy Warner Park.

"I think running has changed my outlook on life," she says. "I can now vicariously feel the same way about Percy Warner Park that Henry David Thoreau feels about Walden Pond. Nature is so beautiful with the rotting beer cans, and assorted articles of dirty clothing. The microcosm of the park reflects the macrocosm of the beautiful world."

Dr. Marney plans to start a Senior English running program. "Each English class will run to the park with their texts in hand," she explains. "We will recite lines from T.S. Eliot's and Ezra Pound's poems. This experience will uplift the student to my level— well, almost!"

"I believe these classes will make it easier for me to understand the beauty and truth Betty and Dona worship," Alison Russell enthusiastically states.
