"FREEDOM IS NOT FREE"

The events of last September were truly tragic and horrifying. On this day last year, the very core belief of the United States of America was attacked. Freedom was denied for a brief moment in time but it was the launch to "endure" freedom that made a shaken nation stronger and a shattered people rebuild.

The past year has made us all blatantly aware of the truth that "freedom is not free." Men and women alike have paid the price with their lives throughout this year, as they did on this day a year ago. Whether on the battle field, by flying a commercial jet, or just merely going about their daily tasks, the citizens of this great nation rose up and demanded that they would overcome.

A year later we reflect on the events of that day, their impact and their influence. Freedom has rung for every mountain top this past year, and it has yet again been embraced by the people it protects. It's purpose remains tried and true and it's cause just. This September, as in many other Septembers and years to follow, freedom has endured, freedom is alive and freedom will remain forever strong in this great country, the United States of America.
