What I remember best about my Ward-Belmont days... Miss Morrison and T.O.P.S. (Training Order for Patriotic Service) got us up before daylight for "work-out" marching, etc. in case World War II got worse and women were called to duty. Wonderful food and dessert served in shaped waffle cones (made in W-B kitchen).

Where my life has taken me...

Lived mostly in Savannah. 14 years real estate sales. 13 years in Social Work. 25 years in Co-op art gallery as professional enamellist (glass, copper, and silver) and photographer. 50 plus years creating fine camellia garden – 100 or so large bushes. Live in a little bit of heaven on the banks of salt water creek – with 2 very special Cavalier King Charles Spaniels.

What I remember best about my Ward-Belmont days...In 2 short years, Ward Belmont made indelible memories; I gained a sense of my abilities serving on all the publications, as feature editor, art editor (Chimes) and one of 3 responsible for the year book. One important factor- I easily without question fell into "the rules" "back of the bus, white restrooms etc." And so can see how easily people can go along with injustice. Senior year I planned the themes and songs for Senior- Sr. midday. Mona Lisa Smile had me prodding my grand daughters over blazers and hats. I was proposed to by an Air Force navigator in the yard goods department of Cain -Sloan- feasted on Southern Cooking and continue to adore it- the people, the history, the music, it was a magical time- married in Nashville two days after graduation.

Where my life has taken me...

I've been a mother and a grandmother, which explains my lack of funds. I was unaware of my potential- but volunteered in art museums, charities and traveled in England and France. I've been proud (and cried) at each son's and grandchild's graduation. I have a grandchild in medicine at Columbia Union, a granddaughter with a master's degree in education and another granddaughter in Law School- a family to be proud of. The girls graduated from Trinity and the grandson from Rice. Perhaps a facet of my generation is that we find our pride in others.
