TEMPLE DEDICATION WAS MEMORABLE EVENT

With a series of events that attracted city-wide attention, Temple Israel dedicated its new building September 17 and 18 and September 24.

Rabbis David Wice of Philadelphia and Arthur Lelyveld of New York, former Temple rabbis, took part in the opening services Friday night and on Saturday morning when the religious school was dedicated. They spoke at the congregational banquet Saturday night.

Rabbi Lou Silberman, a former rabbi now of Nashville, Tenn., was the speaker for Community dedication services September 24, when over one hundred civic and religious leaders of the community attended the services and reception that followed.

An "open house" Sunday afternoon gave the general public an opportunity to inspect the new Temple as guides took the visitors on conducted tours of the building.

WOMEN ARE THANKED FOR DEDICATION HELP

Mrs. Bernhardt Wolf, Sisterhood president, extends thanks to all of the women who serve on the various committees for the dedication observance, as well as to those who baked the beautiful cookies that graced the reception tables after the Friday night services.

Mrs. Wolf has asked that the Tidings express her personal thanks as well as that of the Sisterhood to all of those who assisted in making the event a memorable one.
