From Rabbi to Members . . .

Our High Holidays are a stimulating spiritual and ritual beginning of another year and another season of labor together. Many comments are often made about the large attendance at Rosh Hashonah and Yom Kippur worship and the contrast with services the balance of the year. On this matter I am neither judgmental nor pessimistic. I am not sure that worship alone is the essence of Judaism, although I am sure that without a reverence for God that makes us speak his praise in prayer, Judaism is impossible.

But there is more to Judaism than worship and the education of our children and, thank God, the multitude of meetings and programs which seem to keep our community tottering on the fine edge between sensible attention to the real demands of religious life and frenetic busyness.

The members of our congregation have made marvelous investments of service, support, loyalty and leadership in our Temple. I can only hope that more of our members will take advantage of what we believe to be the well-rounded program reflecting the purposes of a Synagogue. Let us use what we have built.

The Temple is not a Club. But we hope you will find friendship here.

The Temple is not in the business of entertainment. But we hope you will find our surroundings pleasant.

The Temple is not a public relations center. But let us hope that here the ideas of Judaism will find their finest expressions.

The Temple is not a public school nor a university. But we do strive to make our Temple the place where young and old may learn more and more of Torah which is Jewish wisdom in all its ages and in every way that it relates to our lives.

The Temple is not a place of retreat from the society in which we live or the politics and government which regulates it, nor from the problems of family life or of community or nation, nor from personal worry or fear. But we dare to hope that in the Temple through its programs, and classes and discussions we may together come squarely to grips with all of these and more of the components of useful and creative living.

As your Rabbi it is my wish that our Temple should play this role in your lives. In my personal service to you I shall try to make it so—if you will.

SIDNEY H. BROOKS.

SERVICES IN CHAPEL SEPTEMBER 6 and 13

A MESSAGE FROM YOUR DIRECTOR OF EDUCATION

Dear Parents:

On behalf of the Religious School faculty and myself, may I wish you and your children L'Shona Tova, a very Happy New Year.

As partners in Jewish education, I wish each of us great success in the divine commandment of educating our children.

It is our most sincere wish that the parents of our congregation will make every effort to get to know the faculty of the Religious School, so that through our joint efforts Jewish education will become a thrilling and happy experience for our children.

During the coming school year you may help your children in the following ways:

1. Provide a positive Jewish environment in the home.
2. Participate in School and Temple activities.
3. Show interest in your child's Religious School work.
4. Encourage regular and punctual attendance at classes.
5. Check to see that your child brings books and supplies.
6. Learn with your child.

Cantor Manfred F. Kuttner,
Director of Education.
