

Children of Camp Brooklyn Hold a Reunion

Was held at the Bureau of Charities Building, Livingston street, last evening. About 150 of the youngsters attended.

Standard Union Photograph.

Former President of Salvage Corps Buried With Honors

Edward A. Pearce, for twenty-seven years president of the Fire Insurance Salvage Corps of New York City, was buried yesterday from his late home, 295 Macon street. Photograph shows scene in front of Central Congregational Church during the services.

Standard Union Photograph.

Col. Arthur Little and Wife Sail

The commander of the Fifteenth (Negro) Infantry, N. Y. N. G.—which during the war won fame and glory as the 369th U. S. Infantry—and Mrs. Little on the United American Line S. S. Reliance, sailing from New York for Europe yesterday.

Photogram.

Mrs. Hall Interviewed

The widow of the slain New Brunswick, N. J., rector whose body was found alongside that of Mrs. Eleanor Mills, choir singer, on the Phillips farm, gave an interview to news reporters yesterday.

F. & A. Photograph.

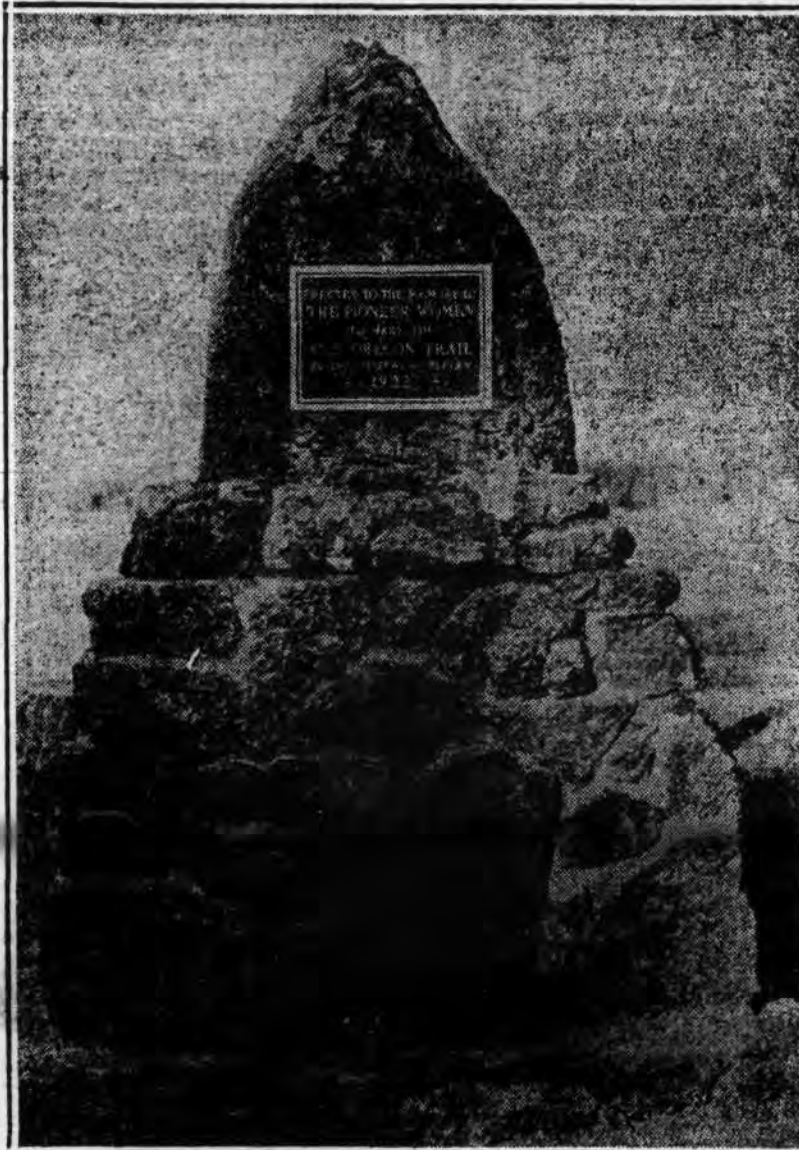

Quick Witted

When fire broke out on the third floor of a celluloid novelty house in Brooklyn, where seventy-five girls were working, Miss Lilyan Kolsky, nineteen, ran through the building shouting a warning to other employees. The smoke was so dense that it was necessary for the girls to use the fire escape as the only means of exit.

F. & A. Photograph.

Trailside Monument to Heroines

This rough but beautifully appropriate monument, erected along the Oregon Trail by the Women's Club of Burley, Idaho, as a tribute to the women who assisted in blazing that great "path of danger" across the continent in pioneer days, was unveiled last week with appropriate ceremonies.

Underwood.

Her Two Children Burned to Death

Two babies, Dorothy Connors, four, and John, four months, were burned to death when an oil stove overturned and set fire to their home, 217 Maujer street. The mother, Mrs. Ida Connors, in attempting to save her children, was seriously burned and is under the care of physicians.

F. & A. Photograph.

Frank S. Gannon, Jr., and His Family

Popular Republican candidate for Supreme Court, photographed at his Staten Island home.

Hamre Photo.

Finds Cannon With His Initials

Frederick W. Call, of Eastport, Maine, 78 years old, veteran of the Civil War, carved his initials on a cannon more than fifty-five years ago while with his regiment on the battlefield and never expected to find it again, but when one of the relics of the rebellion was donated to his native frontier seaport at Eastport, Maine, he came across the initials.

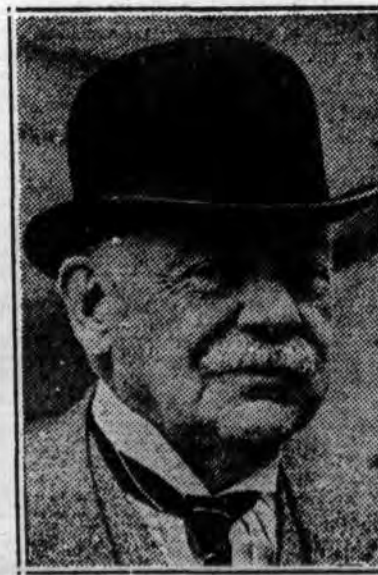

Keystone View Co.

Norman E. Andersen

Republican candidate for Assembly in the Ninth District is making a vigorous campaign.

Thomas Nelson Page

Ex-Ambassador to Italy who died yesterday at his ancestral home in Virginia.

Giving His Sister a Lift

Frank McCasroll, one of the cowboys participating in the cowboy championship tournament at Madison Square Garden, can take his sister Bonnie in one hand with little trouble.

Keystone View Co.

Republican Candidates Whose Names Will Be Placed Before the Voters of New York State Next Tuesday

Left to right—N. Monroe Marshall, candidate for State Treasurer; Charles L. Cadie, for State Engineer; Erskine C. Rogers, for Attorney General; United States Senator William M. Calder, Governor Nathan L. Miller, William J. Maier, for Controller; William J. Donovan, for Lieut.-Governor; Samuel Joseph, for Secretary of State.

