it was morning, the birds were chirping people were laughing, but then all of a sudden the teacher came in the class room with tears we asked her what was the matter and then she told us the news, she explained that people had crashed planes into the pentagon and the twin towers at first I really didn't believe her but then they took us to watch the tv. then that's when I saw the horror. I was feeling very bad some people were crying but then it got worse when they told us there might be a war. Damm!
