Final, Final 100 Words

On September 11, 2001,

I was reading the manual of the TI-83 plus calculator which I borrowed from Mr. Cerda in order to better understand the calculator I will be using to solve many Algebra questions that will be presented later in the semester.

Suddenly a friend of Mr. Cerda's named Mr. Ranjel bursted into the class saying, "the twin towers have collapsed, and thousands are thought dead." Right off the bat the words that came to mind were "Galvan=television=CNN," which meant that a teacher named Mr. Galvan was in possession of a television receiving CNN signals.

And that is how I witnessed the event and where I was when disaster occurred.
