BOWLERS TRAINING FOR TOURNAMENT

THRILLING MARCH HELD BETWEEN
CORRIGAN CUSPIDS AND DOXZON DORMIES!
Muth in Training!

The bowling season is on full swing--and many are the pins that are falling under the terrible onslaughts of the various teams.

Many prospective stars are in training. We watched Dan Muth training the other day and he seems to be a likely contender for the cup.

On Wednesday April 1st, the MOLAR BOYS defeated the Y BUMS 3 games out of 3. But you can't keep a good team down. Wednesday April 8th, the Y BUMS retaliated with a total of 1432 pins against 1427 pins for three games with the MOLARS. The score is now even between the two teams. Which team will win Wednesday night to decide the series? That is the big question.

The line ups for last Wednesday night were as follows:

DOXZON DORMIES (Y BUMS)
Ross	103	90	83	276
Myers	105	96	107	308
Sheldon	81	87	88	256
Tydings	92	97	127	316
Doxzon	102	97	87	286
TOTAL				1442
CORRIGAN CUSPIDS (Y MOLARS)
Houghton	95	97	86	278
Vezina	73	89	83	245
Olivia	88	100	93	281
McKenzie	83	114	106	303
Corrigan	97	127	106	330
TOTAL				1437

MYSTERY MURDER CASE GROWS MORE AND MORE
COMPLEX; BAKER RUNS ELEVATOR WRONG WAY!

about keeled over when I looked down that elevator shaft. What a gruesome sight it was! There in a mass of wreckage at the bottom of the shaft, I could discern A.E. Baker, who, not seeing anyone running the elevator, was in a hurry to get to his room, so tried to run it himself, but due to the fact that his thoughts were far away, he had run the elevator downward instead of upward. I could hear him crying out faintly: "Darling I didn't mean to do it! Forgive Me!" I aroused Shores of 610 and told him to go down and fix the poor boy up.

In the meantime I ran to the 6th floor phone and telephoned the police to be on the lookout for the murderer. But I got poor service as usual on the switchboard for Mr. Loister had been knocked coo-coo after hitting his head against that cuspidor. Anyhow our calls had become mixed up and I could hear another party talking on the line. It didn't sound like talking--it was more like the cooing of a dove with words of fiery and ardent love. I know right away that it was Emswiler (636) as Richmond, Va. was on the other end. "My what inspiring love making" I thought, "no wonder these operators go insane!" Some feminine voice on the other end of the line was saying "Well, dear, what do you want?". Just then Mr. Loister butted in on the line: "Five cents please!" I was so convulsed with laughter I had to hang up. So I went down to the lobby to get a direct line outside. But alas!----the line had been cut! I was helpless!--and the murderer was getting away!

Just then Freddy Houghton came in with three black eyes he had received in a fight.

"Quick," he yelled "some guy came tearing around the block outside--he's insane! Get the gang together!"

I rang the fire alarm--but it was of no avail--everybody was sound asleep. Just then Don Gillum came in. He had a black eye, his derby was smashed, and his pipe was bent up over his nose.

"Hey, youse guys", he yelled "there's some crazy gink outside runnin around", and then he fell into a faint.

That was the last straw! Something must be done! Jack Notermann, Matthew, McKay, and Pincura had just come in the door and

EDITORIALS x

It's too hot to write any editorials today. All we can think of is green grass trees, flowers, and delightful summer evenings!----summer is almost here!

Some of us will be scooting homeward again soon, and others of us will take on other positions, and still others will go right through the summer as if nothing happened. Welcome to summer!

MURDER MYSTERY (CONTINUED)

"Onward Christian Soldiers" on the piano. So I got them all together and out the door we marched after this lunatic. It was then about 2 o'clock in the morning so we had to hurry.

We did not have to worry about help as others soon came. Brown and G.G. Snyder came running from the Y.W.; Merritt from the Hull House; Joe Notermann from Cockeysville, Dorsey & Hooper from Catonsville; Larson from the Nurse's Home; Hamill from Hampden, and Huddle from quite a distance. As we started out Dr. James came along and said he was feeling mediocre enough to join us. However as soon as we got started, Hamill and Dr. James got into a terrible argument over the next presidential election, so we had to leave them behind.

We all walked stealthily down Cathedral Street watching very closely. Suddenly we were aroused by a terrible prolonged yell as if from the throat of a hyena. We were all frightened for a minute, but reassured when we knew it was Dick Morriton singing in the Washroom of the 6th floor. When we reached Centre Street we could hear arguments in 642. We all listened for a while and finally concluded that Rows was playing pinochle in his sleep.

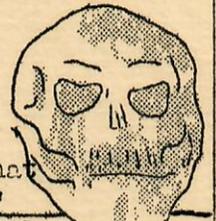

"Quick! there he goes!" yelled on of the gang and surely enough there in the distant moonlight we could see a huddled form scurrying along. It must have espied us as it redoubled its pace with ours.

"Hurry up guys!"--but these words were no more than out of my mouth when I fell, somebody grabbed me--a scream!--yelling--commotion!--and lo and behold!--
