Senior Class History

Now that our twelve year voyage on the ocean liner "Vernon High School" has been completed, we look back to 1939 when it all began.

Out of the original crew of twenty-two, there are only eight "swabies" left. We sometimes wonder how many of them remember the first day out at sea. I bet Miss Paden, our captain for the first part of our voyage, does. Her crew, at that time, consisted of Howard Karr, Irene Flowers, Bob Biggin, Grace Saltzman, Pete Tupper, Virginia Holler, and last, but far from least, Eileen Edeburn and George Letcher. Remember their big love affair? I wonder why the kids were not so excited in the second grade. The newness must have worn off. The following year, we were promoted to the third grade and Miss Warman. Donna Fair was the ninth member to join the class. Dale Draa was the only one that joined us in the fourth grade. Remember the parrot Miss Warman brought to school, and how she tried and tried to make it talk. The next year, we received two more permanent members, Colleen Betts and Opal Rice. Up to this point, the going hadn't been too tough. Perry Coxson, Grace Bradley, and Paul Morris joined the crew the following year. Mrs. Lillie, the captain of the sixth grade, certainly taught the boys the meaning of the yard stick; "this, they got a bang out of." In September, the following year, we got promoted to upperclassmen. This promotion brought us one deck closer in fulfilling our journey. Dick Mullett, Paul Stevens, Alton Jewell, and Glen Hall joined us in the eighth grade, to learn the new art of changing classes with the rest of us. Eating worms at the Freshman initiation was a night that we will never forget. As the years rolled by, we had a great deal of fun, as Mr. Mallett tried his best to teach us the fundamentals of Algebra. The next year, we were also exposed to the digestive system in Biology. The Junior year was quite a year, selling this and selling that, to earn money for our big trip to Washington and the Junior-Senior banquet which was later held at Schusters. I think we shall never forget our Junior play, "Here Comes Charlie," the many nights we spent rehearsing and Mrs. Wilts patience will remain as memories of our glorious high school days. That year, the last two permanent members, Joanne Burdine and Dot Symons, joined the crew to make a Senior class of twenty-one.

And now as our long voyage draws to an end, we face still a greater voyage; the voyage of fulfilling our ambitions.

Donna Fair

Class Poem

FAREWELL

The day has come to bid adieu
From all who love and cherish you;
The bells ring out as we march on
Into the waiting world beyond.

After twelve long years of work and play--
We've looked forward to this great day,
When we would leave our desk and books behind
And join the parade of progress line.

To you, dear Vernon, we give our thanks--
For fun and knowledge, too.
We'll go our separate ways in life
But always think of you.

As our class of '51 departs,
And we go on our way;
We thank you, Vernon, for your part
In shaping our lives this way.

Opal Rice

Last Will and Testament

We, the Senior Class of 1951, being of sound mind and understanding, but realizing that we must soon depart, do hereby make and publish this, our last will and testament, hereby revoking all others.

Colleen Betts wills her sore pitching arm to Mr. Mallett--he deserves it.

Bob Biggin wills his driving "ability" to Rod Rufener.

Grace Bradley assigns her attendance record to her sister, Priscilla.

Joanne Burdine leaves her poise and dignity--to say nothing of brains--to Shirley Blair.

Perry Coxson's "loving ways" are inherited by Norman Hightree.

Dale Draa wills his love of cars to Norman Powell.

Eileen Edeburn bestows her way with men to Pat Todd.

Donna Fair leaves her daintiness to Mary Moore.

Irene Flowers bequeaths her blushes to Joan Ashe.

Virginia Holler wills her beloved roller skates to Pat McMahon.

Glenn Hall feels he needs everything he has, so he is keeping all.

Alton Jewell leaves his title of "Lover" to Dick Kistler.

Howard Karr leaves his deep voice--that all women love--to Ralph Rice.

George Letcher will leave anything to any underclassman except Joann.

Paul Morris wills his good marks to Bill Victor.

Dick Mullett's "horseplay" and stale jokes are inherited by Bill Biggin.

Opal Rice wills her good humor and pep to Bertha King.

Grace Saltzman leaves her energy and leadership to Emma Jean Brown.

Paul Stevens--The Class of '51 leaves him and his "hogwrestles."

Dot Symons regretfully bestowes upon Betty Sponsler her beauty and her Pepsodent smile.

Pete Tupper's ability to sleep in any class is inherited by George Ketola.

To all students of V. H. S., we leave our memories, good times, and this yearbook for future help and inspiration.

Signed and sealed this day of May, 1951.

Senior Class Prophecy

Not so long ago in Government class, I began to feel drowsy and was soon fast asleep. A picture was forming in my mind. I seemed to be at a Vernon Homecoming years later.

My eyes first rested on a gray-haired man working in a stand trying to sell some leftover yearbooks. I recognized him as Mr. Schettino.

There was another stand where a pretty blonde woman was selling the famous "Beannie" hats. I knew that must be Colleen Betts.

Just then a beat-up, green, "Chevy" went around the corner on two wheels. On the side was a big sign which read, "Bob Biggin's Death Dodgers."

Grace Bradley must still like to play baseball, for she now plays for Mr. Mallett's "Vernon Indians."

There was a tent with a sign which read, "Watch Miss Dare-Devil ride up the wall on her Jet Motorcycle." I rushed in and there riding up the wall was my old friend, Joanne Burdine.

I then gazed across the street to Coxson's "What-ever-you-want-we-got-it" store, and there was Perry himself dozing on the front porch.

You know Dale Draa's ambition was to grind glasses, but he bought a monkey and is now an organ-grinder.

I saw Donna Fair, but she couldn't talk long. She was on her way to her studio where she teaches cheerleading. (Three easy lessons for only $20.) Rah! Rah! Rah! She did tell me, though, that Irene Flowers had become a famous song writer since she had written a song about herself, the title-"Good Night, Irene, Good Night."

Virginia Holler is now the proud owner of the 5-points skating rink. (Free lessons for all her classmates.)

Opal Rice rode up in a big car; I heard she runs a rest home for teachers affected with school-itis.

Station P. U. has a show here and every time their comedian, Glenn Hall, tells a joke, the people cry instead of laughing.

Right next to Coxson's store, George Letcher has a barber shop and is famous for his "Atomic" hair cuts.

I heard Dick Mullett changed his name to Romeo Q. Mullett and has a television show called "Ladies Only."

Howard Karr was there and he told me he lived in Hollywood where he models baseball uniforms for the Strike-One Company.

Paul Morris had some of his riding horses there. He makes a business of raising them on his cross-eyed (X) ranch.

I looked around and saw a very pretty nurse coming toward me. It was Dot Symons. She is now working in Paul Steven's Dog Hospital. Paul has made quite a profit in giving baths to rich people's dogs.

I was talking to Grace Saltzman. She now owns the Shady Grove Dance Hall, which features those great musical players, "Joe Banana and His Bunch."

A handsome red-haired sailor came up and tapped me on the shoulder. It was Pete Tupper; he now owns a garbage boat on Lake Erie.

Someone behind me said "May I draw your face?" It was Alton Jewell. He told me he drew a cartoon strip for the "Burghill Snoop."

All at once a bell began to ring and the faces faded away. I was once more in Government class and the bell was ringing for the next period. They say dreams come true, if so, you know what to look forward to.

It's fun to go lunching
With friends that you know
But there's often the question:
"Just where shall we go?"

The answer is simple
And saving on "dough"
When you lunch at ISALY'S
Where thrifty folks go.

There's sodas and sundaes
And good things galore
For you and your school friends
At each ISALY STORE
