On Tuesday January 21st. we had a 13 inch snow here and most of it is still here. As a result of this snow our multiflora roses are serving as a banquet for the birds. The last few days we have had at least 50 Robins besides several other species of birds. Several Waxwings the last couple of days.

Today I saw about a dozen flocks of black birds averaging 50 or more to a flock. I couldn't identify them as visibility was too poor. Where I used to see hundreds & sometimes thousands of crows flying over my home each A.M. I now see only a few. They may be spreading out now getting ready for nesting. I saw only 1 mockingbird today in the Multiflora fence where we usually see several while over in back of Krug Park along a creek

I had a ring side seat of a pack of dogs trailing a Red Fox. The Fox passed within a few feet of me and I believe that the fox outsmarted them.

I had heard the Bewick's Wren for two or three days without knowing what it was. This morning I saw it here at home for an instant and this evening I saw it several times. I put out a wren house for it and I hope that it will try nesting here

Did my birding today with Robert A. Brown, Simon Rositzky and Kenneth Krumm. We had figured on at least 100 species for the day but it rained all day long. The water was too high at the Refuge for Small Shore Birds and it was too wet and rainy to get out of the car to look for warblers. Best bird of the day was probably the Long-billed Curlew and the next was eleven Avocets. At Squaw Creek we saw a pair of Carolina Wrens with some young off the nest and flying.
