Both last evening and this evening I made a rush trip out to John Hamilton's home to see what he took to be a Rock Wren. He feels pretty certain of it but both times that I have gone out I missed the bird. He does live in an area that would be fairly suited to the bird. He lives up in the hills overlooking the Missouri River about half a mile away. It isn't rocky around his home but there are rock quarries nearby.

John Hamilton + I birded 7:30 AM to 12 noon driving to Honey Creek via Amazonia Road through the hills + coming back via Amazonia road through the flats. We saw the Plover in the Amazonia flats. Also at Honey Creek we both saw and heard a bird that could conceivably be a ~~Bachmans warbler~~. We saw the bird high in a tree and heard the song. We could not positively identify it as a Bachmans. John, his wife and I left at 2:30 PM for Squaw Creek + got back home at 9 PM. Clear, hot + humid.

after thinking about the possibility of the bird we heard at Honey Creek of being a Bachmans Warbler, John Hamilton and I made a trip back to Honey Creek this evening in a 102° temperature to check on the Bachmans Warbler. We did not see or hear the same bird that we saw and heard Sunday. Today was hot & humid 102°.

On my trip to the airport this morning to pick up flowers I left early in order to try & find some Snowy Egrets that Hamilton saw yesterday but they were not there. I went back again this evening but still no Snowies. Larry & some more boys went to Honey Creek this morning on a camping trip that is to last several days. They forgot one of the tents so about 6 PM Pearl, Lola & I took the tent and some more water to the boys.

I left home early this morning for the Airport to pick up some flowers & look for Hamiltons Snowy Egrets. But they still were not there. I drove the Flower Route today up to Clarinda Iowa, west to Shenandoah, Iowa and then back home. I stopped long enough at Squaw Creek to make a quick tour of the water area there. It is still hot and humid with the high in the 90's almost every day.

This morning at home I found a young (dead) Cedar Waxwing, barely out of the nest. Actually I believe that the bird had died because it couldn't fly enough to get into a shrub or tree. It had apparently crawled up into a corner where my front porch and house come together. We have several trees at home so they may be nesting at our home. Today was hot all day with a high of 102°. I didn't go anywhere until 2 PM and then Pearl & I drove to Squaw Creek via Imogen road through the hills and the River Road. John Hamilton & Julie came to Squaw Creek shortly after we did and right on their tail came Bob Brown & Bubbles.

I feel certain that the cowbirds that I have been seeing lately have nested near here, probably in one of my trees because the young one I found dead four days ago probably died because it was too immature to fly and it was probably from the same hatch as the young I saw this evening. They were not flying too well.

Our high during the day was 75° and the forecast for tonight is for it to drop in to the 50° . This is the kind of weather that I like.

Today was partly cloudy & nice and cool, clear & I and the dog birded 10 PM till about 4 AM down Huntoon Road, Lake Contrary, Mud Lake and back around the Boulevard & through Ashland Cemetery. Except for flocks of Robins there were not many birds in the cemetery but the Cedar trees look almost white with Cedar berries. That should mean good birding this fall & winter.

Today was the first day of my two week Vacation. I had hoped that I could make a few days trip to Colorado but so many things came up to take my money I was unable to make the trip. Lois & Larry did make a trip to Alamogordo New Mexico. They left Friday morning on a motor trip down with Nancy & Barbara Roberts and will come back by plane in about a week.

about 150 mile drive

Pearl, her dad and I took off about 8 AM. for a drive. I drove west in Kansas to Troy, then south to Atchison. From there we came back into Missouri & to Highway 116 to 169, then on to Trimble Wildlife Area. From Trimble to home by back roads including the Easton Road. About 20 miles south of town Pearl saw a bird in flight that from her description must have been a Pileated Woodpecker. I was driving and had a truck close behind me so by the time I stopped the bird was out of sight. We got home about 3 PM. We ate lunch in Plattsburg
