

Dear Lord, in Your great goodness You gave us the privledge of knowing some of the world's loveliest women - some only in their sweet budding youth, and others in their full bloom of maturity. You have taken a small handful to grace Your home in Heaven. The rest of us wait patiently through winters and summers to be gathered to complete the full bouquet. Let us feed on Your love as we grow through the briars of life. When we are at last taken to Heaven, we will have a true reunion with You and the roses You picked first.
