

Extract from Mona's Herald, Wednesday, 23rd December, 1863

F55-48

The New Ship Euterpe which was launched a short time since from the Ramsey shipbuilding yard, was towed to Liverpool by the tug-boat Royal Arch on Thursday last. The Euterpe was removed from her moorings at the shipyard wharf on Monday, and placed alongside the North Pier to await the arrival of the tug-boat from Liverpool. The tug not having arrived on Thursday, the Euterpe was taken in tow on Thursday afternoon by the steamer Mona's Isle, Captain Skillicorn, and safely towed into the bay, where the ship came to an anchor. As the Euterpe passed the Pier-head, with masts and rigging complete, and some of her sails bent, a large number of spectators who had assembled on the Pier to witness her departure, cheered vociferously. The tug-boat arrived in Ramsey bay during Thursday night, and having taken the Euterpe in tow, proceeded to Liverpool, where both vessels safely arrived on Friday.

---

