Areas of flaking paint were consolidated with Beva-371 (ethylene vinyl acetate copolymer, Adam Chemical Co.), followed by localized heat, using a tacking iron. Surface cleaning with saliva followed by naphtha removed a dense layer of surface grime. This cleaning restored the characteristic gloss-matte inconsistencies which are inherent in the paint surface. After cleaning, paint losses were filled with gesso (calcium carbonate and Kaolin bound in rabbit skin glue). Inpainting of losses was done with localized application of gouache. The keys were secured and a backing board was installed. Edge stripping was added for protection. Final documentation was completed.
