Hello,

I am writing back to you about the 1937 GMC panel truck that I have. I bought this truck from a friend who lives in Iron River, Michigan. He had found it in a private junkyard, also located in Iron River. When I found this truck, the engine and front sheet metal (front clip) had been removed. It took me a couple years to find another truck for parts, but I finally got this one put together. It still needs a full restoration, but at least now it is complete. Unfortunately, due to some other projects I have going on, I have sold this truck. It is still in my possession right now, but in about a month it will be heading to a fellow truck restorer in eastern Pa. I thought you might enjoy the photos I have attached. The lettering on the sides of the truck is really neat - it says "Merrill Woolen Mills, Merrill, Wisc." The painting of the rams head sheep is really neat. It sure makes you wonder how this old truck spent it's life, and then after the Woolen Mill shut down, what did it do?

Hope you enjoy these pictures, Bernie Kranz
