"Following is a brief account of the condition of premises, utensils, and cows as I found them in regard to production and handling of milk for the city of Merrill:

"Dairy of J. M. & L. J. O'Reilley. I found conditions at this dairy very good. They have good facilities for caring for and handling milk. Utensils and premises were found clean. Appearance of everything about the place gave the impression that care was exercised in every operation pertaining to the production of clean milk. Cows are in a clean condition.

RAY ENGEL BULLDOZING

from the reminiscences of Ray Engel and his son, Gerald Engel

It all began with the daydreams and hopes of a ten-year old boy. In 1935, Highway 64 west to the junction of Highway 107 was re-built and paved, and ten-year old Ray Engel had a front-row seat for the excitement. His parents owned the dairy* on the corner of Highway 64 and Mill Road, and Ray decided then, that he would someday be a heavy equipment operator. As Ray reminisced, "I was there to watch them work. In those days, the equipment was very crude and it took much longer to do the job than it does now. Dry mix was hauled in by 5-yard dump trucks and then dumped into the mixer for concrete to pave the road."

wrote down some of the reminiscences of her husband, Ray Engel. Ray had been able to realize his dream of becoming a heavy equipment operator, and he and his bulldozers were a familiar sight. Before starting his own business, Ray amassed much experience. He worked for Ritter Saw Mill and operated the crawler, which brought the logs into the sawmill and took the lumber out. For seven years, he worked for Merrill Gravel and Construction, operating a Caterpillar D7, and then he worked for Drott Manufacturing. Locally, he buried a great many stone piles for farmers, cleared a lot of land, and kept many good memories of the days, when the farmers invited him in for a fine meal and a good visit.

Raymond Engel, born August 17, 1926, was the son of Lindardt and Martha Engel, born respectively in 1880 and 1882.

Albert Gehrt, 1856-1924, grandfather of Elaine Engel.

The couple immigrated from Denmark, landed at Ellis Island, and eventually made their way to our Town of Scott, bought a farm and then started a dairy on Highway 64 west, where the current day Seeger's Dairy is located. Their son, Raymond, chose Elaine Weber, born July 29, 1925, as his bride. Elaine was the fourth generation in her family to reside in the Town of Scott, as her great-grandfather, Jacob Weber, an immigrant from Germany, was apparently one of the first individuals who purchased land in our current Lincoln County. The land Jacob purchased in 1863 is now located on Fairview Road but at that time, his farm was officially in Marathon County, as neither Lincoln County nor the Town of Scott existed at so early a date.

Bertha (Gehrt) Weber and Harry Weber on their wedding day: November 27, 1920.

Jacob's son, Otto Weber, and Otto's wife, Martha (Brandenburg) Weber, later owned a farm on Maple Grove Road. (This farm is now owned by Helen and Stephen Schlinkert.) Otto and Martha had nine children, and their second child, Harry, born in 1900, married Bertha Gehrt on November 27, 1920. Bertha and Harry Weber eventually moved to and took over her parents' farm, located on the south side of School Avenue and Mill Road. (Bertha was the daughter of Albert Gehrt, who had immigrated from Berlin, Germany, and Marie (Kumms) Gehrt.)

It was many years later, that their daughter, Elaine,
