Richard Hattatt

Richard Hattatt had a lifelong interest in archaeology, and when he retired from his family firm he devoted himself to the study and collection of antiquities. These ranged from flints and pottery collected locally near to his home in the New Forest and in Wiltshire and Dorset to Greek vases from the Mediterranean, but his interest soon focused on brooches, and he rapidly built up an important collection. The lack of easily obtainable reference books prompted him to write his own. His first book was published in 1982, and, as his collection grew, further books appeared in 1985, 1987 and 1989. Each brooch is described in detail and illustrated with a meticulous drawing, and there are lots of additional notes on comparable types.

Richard Hattatt died in 1992. He had already deposited parts of his collection in the Ashmolean Museum in Oxford and in the Devizes Museum, and sold other parts at auction and privately; so his collection is now dispersed. But his four books remain – a record of the collection and an endless source of reference and interest for those who follow him. The ‘Visual Catalogue’ reprinted here was a last-minute addition to his fourth book; he prepared it originally for his own use, and realising how often he used it, he decided to include it the book.

Richard Hattatt's four books are:

Ancient and Romano-British Brooches (1982)

Iron Age and Roman Brooches (1985)

Brooches of Antiquity (1987)

Ancient Brooches and Other Artefacts (1989)

Visual Catalogue of Brooches

This 'visual catalogue' was prepared by Richard Hattatt to aid the identification of brooches and for speedy reference to the drawings in his four books. It is reprinted here with the original pagination, and with a supplementary index providing the locations of the brooches.

The brooches are arranged, not by reference number, but by class, as indicated in the following list of contents. Each brooch bears its original number, and while the drawings are here reduced by varying amounts, the actual size of each brooch, together with relative information and discussion, can be ascertained by reference to the original drawings and text in one or other of the books, through which the numbering runs consecutively.

A few types remain unrepresented in the collection, but they are not very common and most can be seen diagrammatically in BoA Figs 116–118.

In the interests of economy, where the profile is comparatively unimportant, space has been saved by a number of the brooches being illustrated frontally only in this particular context.

Brooches from the collection already placed in museum custody are indicated by symbols following their reference numbers. A dot signifies the Ashmolean Museum at Oxford; an asterisk the Devizes Museum in Wiltshire. A small number of brooches other than from the present collection, mainly hitherto unpublished, have been included in the books, and these are indicated with a hyphen on each side of the number. These entries appear thus:

In Ashmolean Museum custody	603•
In Devizes Museum custody	1275*
In other ownership	–1386–

The metal of brooches other than bronze is signified by the following symbols:

Ⓐ = gold	Ⓐ = silver
Ⓕ = iron	p = pewter

Scales

The drawings in the visual catalogue are reduced by varying amounts (mostly about 67% of full size); actual measurements are recorded in the original publications.
