

The town hall was built 50 years ago and was used for religious services and religious worship by any denomination, according to the committee in charge. In addition, it being a place of public place. The structure was one story with a height with a cupola. It was covered with a shingle roof. The interior of the building was much larger. It was a two-story building with a basement. The upper floor being used for the Junior high school and the lower for the high school. The building was heated by a furnace which supplied the heat. It is thought that the fire caught from this furnace. The fire probably smoldered for a considerable length of time before it became a full-blown fire. It is thought that there has been an unusual number of fires in the vicinity. It is not known whether or not the fire had its origin. Some are of the opinion that it caught from defective wiring. It is estimated that there were at least 100 people in the building at the time. They came from points as far as Vergennes and the roads were crowded with people.
