[Letter from Flora Pillsbury (1887-1921) to George Nichols (1889-1961)]

Feb. 25, 1915

Dear Bro. George -

I am going to stay at home tonight and practice and I think maybe if I am a good girl and stick to it I can get my lesson so if you still think you'd like to come down Friday evening come on and if I haven't got my lesson I will practice to entertain you – I know you would enjoy(?) it. Mrs. Clark is invited out to supper and spend the evening and I'd really like to have you come, that is if you won't stay too late, as I may have to sit up all night Saturday night with our sick neighbor Mrs. Butler. Rose had to last night and tonight and it will be my turn Saturday if they haven't got somebody else and I might drop asleep at my post.

You have an invitation up to Henry Pendleton's for Sunday afternoon and evening (supper included). Do you want to go? We would probably leave here about 2 o'clock. I'll tell you about it when you come down, that is if you come, don't change any plans you may have made, but I thought maybe you'd come if you hadn't made any other date.

Hope I haven't written anything that doesn't sound all right in this one. Please put that letter in your pocket (the one you told me about). I want to see what I wrote so I won't do it again.

F.E.P.
