[Letter from Flora Pillsbury (1887-1921) to George Nichols (1889-1961)]

July 10, 1915

10-10 A.M.

Dear George: -

Walter has just been in to see me and he hasn't time to come up and see you as he had to have the horse shod and doesn't like to leave her alone in the shop, afraid they might be rough with her. He says Spring Brook bridge is bad – he doesn't think it is safe for teams even though autos are going over it. He came across on the stringers. So don't try to come up in your car will you, no knowing what might happen if what there is left should give way. Better walk up and ride back with us. You know Dr. Hart told us "sometimes we go slowly but surely". Hope you can read this I'm scribbling it in a rush –
