

YOU BUILD THIS SHIP—This is the Dauntless Dive Bomber (A-24) which you manufacture and assemble in this plant for use by the Army Forces on America's far flung battlefields.

Rules Changed For Parking

The west parking lot was reopened to traffic last Wednesday with a new crushed rock surface, newly assigned parking spaces, and new parking rules.

Small yellow parking tags have been issued to all those who have been assigned places

Douglas Official Believes Giant Planes Unnecessary

Giant transport planes, often predicted as a post-war development, aren't so practical or so necessary as might be imagined, says Arthur E. Raymond, vice-president and director of engineering for the Douglas Aircraft Company.

Fueling Points Enough

He feels that most world trade routes provide enough refueling points so that such super-colossal planes, which are

Employee In Musical Program On Sunday

Slip Stream

By MARGO

BETTY TODD, Central Blue* Print Control, keeps her ear to the ground for news from the Fairgrounds area . . . C. L. SHAWBELL, Maintenance Electrician, says that the barrel of ice water caused the most excitement at the Fairgrounds since . . .

KATHERINE BARNES, Education, is still wandering around in a pink cloud of happiness—her twin brother, who was reported missing, has now been located as a prisoner of war . . .

W. W. McCARTY, Executive Assistant to the Manager, tells us his wedding has been moved up to July 31.

Wonder what kind of a mix-up there will be when those five-odd soldier boys who receive letters from MARY JANE DAVIS and LUCILLE OSWALT get together and compare notes . . .

CARR to Transfer and Place . . . PATRICIA "PAT" HENDRICKSON, Shepherdess of the Station Wagon, second shift, has gone to San Antonio to visit her husband, an aviation cadet, stationed at Kelly Field . . .

Wonder if J.

W. "SMITHY" SMITH, Dispensary, ever got those "dickies," separate shirt fronts he was trying for? . . .

BETTY JUNE SCHNOLL, Industrial Compensation and Safety, tripped down that 'middle aisle' with C. T. AARON Inspection, June 26th . . .

Have you heard about the janitor who was dusting the microphone on Mr. H. O. Williams' desk and accidentally switched it on. Temptation over-ruling, since the little green light had flashed on, he

