

guidance, Continental went into the hotel business in the Pacific and built hotels on Guam, Truk, Palau, and Saipan.

In May of 1975, at Six's recommendation, the airline's board of directors named Alexander Damm as president and chief operating officer of Continental. Six was elected chief executive officer and chairman of the board. Today, Six's airline duties kept him crisscrossing the nation and flying frequently overseas to remain abreast of developments in air transportation and aircraft technology. He married television and motion picture actress Audrey Meadows, an enthusiastic traveler, and she accompanied him on all his trips. The modest carrier that Six started became a major trunk airline with 12,000 employees, 67 jets and more than nine million passengers a year.

Robert Six died on October 6th, 1986.
